

Holcomb Suggests Engaging County Pathologist Here

Health Board Appoints Committee to Consult with Staffs of Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals—Would Make City Laboratory an Accredited Laboratory System.

Dr. Frederick Holcomb, a member of the Board of Health, at the regular meeting of that board Tuesday evening at the city hall, offered the suggestion that the city laboratory on John street be made an accredited laboratory system which would mean that a county pathologist would have to be employed who would have complete charge of the laboratory work in that county.

Dr. Holcomb said that he had been talking with Dr. Wadsworth of the state health department and had been informed that if the system was adopted here that the laboratory would secure state aid to the extent of $7,500 a year, and also a fairly substantial amount to cover cost of new equipment. If the system was adopted the laboratory would have to be under the control of a board of managers made up of medical men. He said that he believed that a first class pathologist could be engaged at a salary of $6,000 a year, and that the remaining $1,500 from the state aid could be used for operating expenses at the laboratory.

Dr. Holcomb said that the matter should be taken up with the staffs of the Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals, and thoroughly discussed before any action was taken.

Dr. Joseph Jacobson, another member of the board, said that it was only a question of time he believed before all laboratories would come under state control. He was of the opinion that the offer of state aid should be accepted.

After some further discussion, Mayor Eugene B. Carey, president of the board, appointed Dr. Holcomb, Jacobson and Dr. Wadsworth a committee to meet and confer with the medical staffs of the two hospitals in regard to the proposition. This committee was instructed to report at the next meeting of the board.

Dr. Harold Clarke, who has charge of garbage collections in the city, reported that the new schedule at collecting garbage twice a week, which was put into effect last week, was working out and he was of the opinion that every difficulty in working the new schedule would be ironed out within the next week.

The board audited bills and transacted some routine business before adjourning.

The reports of the officers of the board will be found elsewhere.

Mayor Carey presided at the meeting with Drs. Holcomb and Jacobson and Mrs. Thomas J. Hickey in attendance.

NINE WAR TOWN IS CELEBRATING MASSACRE

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 12 (AP)—Christian county—No man's land of the Illinois coal miners' war—was guarded against possible disorders today, the anniversary of the Virden, Ill., mine massacre more than 10 years ago.

Pickets, nearly 2,500 of them, mainly from out of the city, tramped streets watched by 200 militiamen. Vigilance was doubled by authorities after a hurried trip to nearby Tovey last night where a shooting was reported. No one could be found who was injured. Authorities said that in the midst of the Tovey incident, telephone wires were cut between Tovey, Kincaid and Taylorville, shutting off communication between Tovey and guard headquarters.

BRITISH TROOPS IN IRELAND TO STOP RIOTS

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Oct. 12 (AP)—British army troops were rushed to Belfast today after rioting, similar to that which resulted in one death and more than thirty serious injuries yesterday, broke out again shortly before noon.

Quiet was restored by the police by midnight last night after a stern quasi-military rule was clamped down on the city. The quiet continued throughout the early morning and forenoon until about 11 a. m. when shooting broke out again in the Falls area west of the city.

A bus was wrecked by the mob and every available armored car was brought into use by the police.

GARNER REPORTS HE IS NOT "MUZZLED"

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—Speaker John N. Garner hastened back to New York today after a hurried campaign conference with Governor Roosevelt in the course of which the Democratic vice presidential nominee assured newspaper men in the New York capital that he was not "muzzled."

He said after the meeting with Mr. Roosevelt that a decision as to what part he will play in the presidential campaign between now and election "has been left to me."

Treasury Receipts

Coolidge Declares Nation Needs Hoover

Ex-President Says Public Welfare Requires Re-election of Mr. Hoover—Attacks Roosevelt on Bonus Question.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Calvin Coolidge, coming from his New England retreat to praise President Herbert Hoover as a man who saved the country from disaster, has signaled the start of the final phase of his party's campaign.

A drive which would reach a climax in the appearance of the President here later was started by eastern leaders today after Mr. Coolidge told a throng in Madison Square Garden last night that the public welfare requires the re-election of Mr. Hoover.

"If saving the country from one impending disaster after another provides any basis for gratitude, President Hoover is entitled to gratitude," he said.

He stated that the country "knows that its worst troubles are probably past and economic recovery is beginning." Then he attacked Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt on the bonus question with these words:

"An early and timely word from the Democratic candidate for president that he would reject the proposal to increase the national debt by $2,300,000,000 to pay the bonus would have been a great encouragement to business, reduced unemployment and guaranteed the integrity of the national credit. While he remained silent, economic recovery was immeasurably impeded."

Making no attempt at forensics, the only living ex-president took out his glasses and manuscript and read his speech. The crowd broke into laughter at his sallies, and shouted "No—No" or "Yes—Yes" to his questions.

"Give 'em hell, Cal," a man in the gallery roared.

In his slow, deliberate voice, Mr. Coolidge hit at what he called "pending Democratic treasury raids" and said that assurance that "they" would be defeated by a Republican victory in November "would have an effect in reviving all kinds of business." He said preservation of the protective tariff, sound money and Mr. Hoover's measures to protect the country's credit system were safe, sure phases of a comprehensive program of economic rehabilitation in which no man had been forgotten.

Sensational Probe Of Insull Affair

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—Machinery of the United States Senate was set in motion today to investigate the Insull debacle.

James E. Stewart, federal operative for the senatorial committee on banking and currency, was due to take charge of an investigation into all phases of the crash.

Senator Peter Norbeck, chairman of the committee, confirmed the investigation and said Stewart, who had charge of the committee's interim investigation of the stock market, left Washington last night for Chicago.

The announcement of the investigation followed rapid developments here. State's Attorney John A. Swanson, after telephonic communication with an undisclosed person in Washington, cancelled a planned trip there and said he would await developments in the move to extradite Samuel Insull, head of the toppled utility pyramid. Swanson said the call "obviated immediate need" for his trip.

It was known he had planned a conference with President Hoover in efforts to hold Insull in Greece pending extradition here to face charges of embezzlement and larceny. The cancelling of the trip was interpreted in official circles as indicating the federal government was expecting speedy action to consummate Insull's return.

Report Pu-Yi Plans To Increase Domain

Changchun, Manchuria, Oct. 12 (AP)—A possibility that a large part of northern China might be annexed to the new state of Manchukuo, with the aid of the Japanese army, and at least part of the old Chinese monarchy restored under the former "Boy Emperor," Henry Pu-Yi, was predicted today by sources close to Pu Yi's palace.

These sources described the move as a cherished ambition of Pu-Yi and his followers and said they hoped to be able to bring it about next spring after the Japanese army has occupied the province of Jehol, which was described "inevitable."

After that, the "Boy Emperor" and his associates were represented as believing the extension of the Japanese military operations southward to the Peiping and Tientsin districts would be an inevitable sequel.

Probing Wallkill Prison Site Cost

The new medium security prison at Wallkill came in for its share of discussion Tuesday at the opening session in the state capitol at Albany of the Republican legislative committee's investigation of expenditures under Roosevelt and Smith administrations.

It was brought out that in August 1931 the $96 acre tract for the prison was purchased for $141,825 after it had been unofficially appraised on a farm land value basis at $24,000.

In connection with this transaction, Commissioner Baldwin testified he had been informed that real estate interests on nine farms involved in the purchase. He also testified that the state had paid $61,000 more than the valuation price fixed by investigators for his department, but that he had kept hands off the situation as the result of an attorney general's opinion that the law requiring appraisals by experts for the Department of Agriculture and Markets did not apply since the site was used for a prison.

E. C. Pooler, an inspector for the Department of Agriculture and Markets, will be called to testify today concerning the options which it was declared were held when the state purchase was made.

Plans and specifications for the expensive cow barns, pig pens and silos for the state institutions were drawn in the State Bureau of Architecture in the Department of Public Works headed by Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, it was declared by former Senator Lusk after the hearing.

The State Department of Correction, headed by Commissioner Warren T. Thayer, was most directly concerned in the purchase of the Wallkill Valley medium security prison site, it was announced. Commissioner Thayer will be given an opportunity to justify the purchase price for the Wallkill valley site before the inquiry closes, Mr. Lusk said.

The details of who gave the legal opinion that the Department of Agriculture and Markets appraisers had no concern in the valuation of land for a prison site remained undisclosed at the end of yesterday's session of the hearing. Facts concerning this opinion and a subsequent one of August 1, 1932, which held the Department of Agriculture and Markets had no control over institutional buildings and sites are to be sought at subsequent hearings before the Hewitt committee. The inquiry will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Besides the investigation concerning the Wallkill prison farm, the legislative committee also held probes of other deals as follows:

$47,265 for a Barn.

Expenditure of $47,265.80 for a barn for 60 cows and accompanying buildings at the Harlem Valley State Hospital.

Expenditures of $84,000 for a cow barn, $30,000 for a calf barn, $20,000 for a horse barn and $1,600 for a tool shed at Letchworth Village at Thelers.

Expenditure of $44,603.63 for a cow barn and accompanying buildings at Marcy State Hospital in 1924-25, during the administration of former Gov. Smith.

Expenditure of $20,023 for a pig pen at Central Islip State Hospital.

JIMMY DE FOREST DEAD.

Long Branch, N. J., Oct. 12 (AP)—Jimmy De Forest, in his day one of the best of boxing managers and trainers, died yesterday at his home here after a long illness, broken in spirit, purse and health.

Too proud to ask his old friends for help, De Forest was almost forgotten in the last months of his life and even the fact that he was ill was not known to many of the men he managed and trained and knew in his salad days.

From 1880 to 1926, when he practically retired from the boxing game, he was connected with practically every great champion of the ring—Jeffries, Johnson, Walcott, Dempsey—and to all of them he rendered valuable service.

CHARGED WITH CHANGING DATE ON CERTIFICATE.

Melvin V. Hood, 33, of Freehold, N. Y., was arrested Tuesday by a U. S. secret service operator attached to the treasury department, charged with altering material dates in an adjusted service certificate.

It is charged that Hood altered dates in a certificate held by him, attempted to negotiate the same and to obtain money from the Veterans' Bureau.

He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner A. C. Connelly, who held him in $1,500 bail for appearance in federal court. Hood was committed to the Ulster county jail pending arrangements for securing bail.

Columbus Sighted West Indies Just 440 Years Ago Today

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Thrust valiantly forward as if aware glory lay just a wave ahead, the silver sails of two dot-like caravels and a pinpoint flagship bobbed on the Atlantic 440 years ago today just off the shore of Guahani Island.

Buoyed by an unwavering hope that the world was round and that to the west waited India's riches, Christopher Columbus aboard the Santa Maria fought down the mutiny of his men, swelling after 36 days at sea from the Canary Islands without a trace of land.

A lookout raised the victory cry as the low-lying bank thought to be clouds off the bow became distinguishable as land. There on that small island—probably what is known today as Watling Island—was the climax of the voyage that was to open a treasure chest far richer than India and form the key that unlocked the Western Hemisphere to the old world.

There the European first set foot on the soil of the Americas. Columbus on that same voyage discovered Cuba and Haiti. He made several other trips to the west after the triumphant return to Palos, from the first cruise on March 15, 1492, and broken in health returned to Spain to die May 20, 1506.

To pay him honor now, the 21 independent republics that grew up in the world he discovered are seeking to build at Santo Domingo—the first permanent Christian settlement in the new world—a colossal lighthouse to the land of the discoverer's birth—Italy—was sent forth yesterday by President Hoover to the Italian-Americans of the country as part of this nation's tribute to the great explorer.

DONOVAN TO CAMPAIGN IN WESTERN NEW YORK

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—Col. William J. "Wild Bill" Donovan came to his home town today to begin the western New York phase of his campaign for Governor.

He stopped at New York last night after making an address in Madison Square Garden in which he called for "simple thrift" in government. He spoke on the same program with Calvin Coolidge.

Among his party in a special section of the train were William L. Carey, Buffalo assemblyman; Walter Berry, personal secretary to Col. Donovan; and William Brown Meloney, campaign adviser.

Donovan will make a speech tonight at a Columbus Day rally of Italian-American societies. Today he expected to attend the funeral of former Attorney General Hamilton Ward, who died Saturday.

RAINS DURING LAST WEEK WERE A GREAT BENEFIT

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—Rains during the last week were of great benefit of wheat seeding, pastures and meadows, says the summary of weather and crop conditions in New York state issued by the United States department of agriculture bureau here.

Some fall plowing is now being done, continues the summary. Most field crops have now been harvested, except late potatoes and cabbage and good progress has been made in potato digging. Cauliflower on Long Island promises a good crop of fine quality. Apple picking is now in full swing and grape picking has begun. On the whole weather conditions have been very favorable for the harvest of fall crops, dry weather hastened their maturity, and there was no serious damage from frosts, except in limited localities.

For a Good Laugh See 'A Woman's Way'

Unintentional Comedy Will Bring Joy to the Heart and Laughter to the Whole Body of Anyone With the Slightest Sense of Humor.

An audience that came to praise the Kiwanis production, "A Woman's Way," knowing the high standard maintained by that club in years past, left the high school auditorium as the curtain rang down last night, bitterly disappointed with the theme, actors and lines in the presentation, and could say only one thing, "the actors tried hard and the play was for a good cause."

There were roars of laughter as the hero entered, his dramatic moments, more roars when he refused the heroine's love and went humbly from the room, and snickers when he played the tender love scenes. There was only a slight ripple of clapping as the curtain rang down between acts and at the finale.

There were such glaring mistakes as the time when the father phoned an employment agency for a housekeeper, neglecting to give his name or address, yet said housekeeper arrived promptly. The housekeeper was a "kew" and if everyone tried to get a job in her manner it is easy to understand why there is so much unemployment.

The older son, a pleasant appearing young man, was a notorious diamond smuggler; the lovely heroine was a secret service agent; the father was an inspiration to the heroine yet he appeared unkempt and in his "cup" most of the first act he was in sorrow for his recently dead wife, yet planned to remarry as the play closed after some eight weeks of action.

It was impossible to get the play in its entirety because many of the lines were mumbled and others shouted at the top of one's voice, however the play contained a little of everything—there were even moments of genuine laughter.

The boy "Tim" was the most genuine and best appearing actor—much wasn't expected of him and he proved a pleasant surprise.

The Kiwanis Club was as disappointed as the audience in the production, which came highly recommended, and the salvation of all is the fact that the play was given for a good cause.

It will be repeated again tonight at the same place and hour. It is worth seeing as its unintentional humor and comprehensive plot and action, in which the whole wide world of impossible situations is covered, make of it an inadvertent farce that will bring laughter to the most lugubrious. For a good laugh that the players do not intend to give you, by all means see "A Woman's Way."

Paul Zucca and his orchestra will furnish music between acts and at the close of the performance tonight.

TOASTSTOOL TEST FAILS.

12 TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—August Magni has this measure of consolation—he proved false the old theory that toaststools stewing in a pot will turn a silver quarter black.

August and his wife, Eva, thought perhaps the fate of their boarding house might be enhanced by such out-of-the-ordinary delicacies as mushrooms.

With a basket and aided by two boarders, who said they could tell mushrooms from toaststools—the Magnis admitted they couldn't—they picked nearly a bushel.

The "mushrooms" shimmered on the stove when August, to make sure they were what he thought them to be, observed:

"If silver turns black, we'll know they are toaststools!"

Into the pot he tossed a shiny, silver quarter. It came out considerably hotter but just as shiny, so the mushrooms were eaten.

Shortly afterward, 12 of the diners went to a hospital for toaststool poisoning treatment, six to remain overnight in what doctors said was "resting comfortable" stage.

Miss Vera K. Charles, mushroom authority of the agricultural department, learned of the incident. She remarked that there was "an old, old theory about silver turning black if there are toaststools in the pot—but it's nothing more than a theory."

Modern Gangs Are Laid to Prohibition

Report Before American Bar Association Declares Prohibition Brought About a Demand For the Services of Outlaws.

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—A report before the American Bar Association today said organized crime by gangsters is based largely on supply and demand and that prohibition "brought about a demand for the services of outlaws such as we never had in this or any other country prior to prohibition."

The report on "unconscionable crime" was made by the committee on criminology designated by the organization two years ago to study gangsters and their operations.

"In the life of our cities we have had various lawless gangs over the last hundred years," the report said. "However, these gangs did not flourish and prosper to any great extent until the advent of prohibition."

The committee consists of George A. Bowman, of Milwaukee, chairman; Herbert Munro of Detroit and William D. Knight of Rockford, Ill., all prosecuting officers. They said: "We do not want to be understood as holding a brief for or against this law; we simply point out what we believe to be a fact, that prohibition brought about a condition of times and customs and law which made it easy for the gangster to obtain a large personal organization at a small risk, and that it also brought about a demand for the services of outlaws such as we never had in this or any other country prior to prohibition."

The report said that despite the prohibition laws there was "a general and widespread demand on the part of a large section of the American public for intoxicating liquor" and that "few people, if any," considered violation of the dry laws involved moral turpitude.

"While gangsters seem to be well entrenched in the life of this country," the report said, "the conditions, times and customs in this country are changing. Strict regulation rather than experiment seems to be the keynote of the immediate future, and in this we see hopeful signs of the elimination of the gangster."

Baby Fatally Hurt When Struck by a Mt. Tremper Truck

Superintendent Kenneth Warren of Beechwood Farms at Mt. Tremper Was Backing Truck Out of Driveway When Baby Tumbled Out Behind It.

While Superintendent Kenneth Warren of the Beechwood Farms at Mt. Tremper was backing a truck out of the driveway at the Farms this morning, Roif, 15 months old son of William Kuhn, who was playing on the sidewalk, suddenly ran behind the truck and was knocked down and fatally injured.

Mr. Warren did not see the baby as he was backing out the truck.

The injured child was picked up and placed in a private car and rushed to Kingston.

At the entrance to the city on Washington avenue the driver of the car stopped and asked Officer Harry Martin, who was on post there to drive with him through the city so that there would be no delay in reaching the Kingston Hospital.

The officer complied with the request and no time was lost in reaching the hospital where it was found that the child had died on the way in from Mt. Tremper.

Unemployed Find Coal Mine in River

St. Paul, Oct. 12 (AP)—Employed and unemployed men and women mined "black gold" on a man-made placer today on the Mississippi river bank.

It was a coke rush and as it continued it was every "prospector" for himself with a full bin for the winter and reward for energetic wading, pick and shovel.

There was no staking of claims, no superintendent of operations and the "miners" came in droves on bicycles, and in automobiles, trucks, coaster wagons, and on foot, some carrying sacks, others lugging baskets.

The "strike" was made at a point on the river bank where a gas plant of a nearby automobile assembly plant discharged the waste from coal after gas and tar had been extracted. That started six years ago.

The other day a man, wandering along the bank looking for stove wood, espied bits of coke cropping out of the ground. An inspection led to active operations and he filled his bins before confiding the secret to a friend. But it soon became an open secret.

Carl's Auto Stolen.

Small Boy Seriously Hurt as Boulder Fell Pining Him in Creek

Frank Anderson, nine year old son of Herman Anderson, of Glenrie is in a critical condition in the Kingston Hospital from injuries received Tuesday afternoon when a large boulder rolled down the bank pinning the lad in the water of the Esopus creek. The boy was brought to the hospital suffering from shock and today his condition was reported as serious with possible internal injuries and fracture of the skull.

Frank and his brother were playing along the Esopus creek on their way home from school in some manner a large boulder was loosened and rolled down the bank striking the lad, throwing him in the water and pinning him under several inches of water. Unable to move the large rock his companion sought help and hailed Trooper Stewart of G. Troop, stationed at Catskill, who happened to be driving past.

With the assistance of others the rock which weighed some two pounds was moved and the lad brought to the Kingston Hospital where he was treated for shock by Dr. Shenger. He also suffered lacerations about the right eye and was in a state of coma. Due to the serious condition it was impossible to further examine the lad to determine whether his skull is fractured or whether he suffered serious internal injuries. His condition today was reported by Dr. Shenger as serious.

The lad's lungs were partially filled with water when he was removed from the creek.

As soon as the lad's condition warrants an examination will be made to determine the exact extent of his injuries.

STORM DAMAGE IN IDEAL PARK SECTION

Ideal Park, Oct. 12—During the severe rainstorm which visited this place as well as other sections in the Catskills, last Thursday, considerable damage was sustained in and about Ideal Park, the most severe to the "parklets" being the washing away of the iron bridge, thus leaving several families without access to their camps, except by temporary foot bridge.

A big loss was sustained by M. E. Fowler, of Kingston, who recently completed a new ice house with built-in cooler. This was completely washed away. Damage was also done to the new Willow-Mt. Tremper highway, which was recently completed. Sections of shoulders were washed away in several places. In one place a slide of considerable proportions completely blocked traffic for 24 hours, necessitating a detour through Wittenberg and points west.

SALVATION ARMY HOPES TO REALIZE $5,000

The Salvation Army, campaigning this week for funds to carry on its "Home Service" work, hopes to realize $5,000 from contributions which may be given to the workers or mailed to Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Max Reben or Adjutant W. N. Wood at the headquarters, 185 Green street.

It is expected by the Salvation Army that it will have to give more aid than ever this winter. Already many needy people have applied for aid, including an elderly woman and her daughter, who have been guests of Adjutant and Mrs. Wood for the past month. They are members of an old Ulster county family and are the victims of sad circumstances caused by death of the husband and the loss of their farm. Until legal proceedings have taken their course they will have to depend on the Army for shelter and care.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Gun "Wasn't Loaded."

Boonville, Ind.—Arthur Griffith pointed his gun at a friend and pulled the trigger. Nothing happened, but the friend reprimanded him for it. To show the gun wasn't loaded, Griffith held it to his own head and pressed the trigger.

He died instantly.

Trees.

Pittsburgh—The trees are cutting rapids in western Pennsylvania. At Sharon, far from Southland, a tree is thriving—loaded with fruit.

In Westmoreland county several apple trees, not content with bearing apples, are displaying sparkling blossoms on their laden branches.

It Was Their Fault.

Salt Lake City—Four convicts in the Utah State Penitentiary who were placed in solitary confinement when they were found drinking a rumel under the wall of the prison, have been ordered released from "solitary" long enough to fill in the 20-foot loop that they excavated. After the work is completed, they will be returned to their "one man" cells.

Woman, 107, No Tretotoler.

London—A hearty trencherwoman and no mean tea drinker is Mrs. Caroline Merriott, London's oldest woman. Celebrating what she called her 107th birthday recently, she put away four jugs of tea, and large supplies of roast beef, potatoes, greens, plum tarts and cheese. For relaxation, she strolled in her garden and drank a glass of ale.

Ice Cream Degree.

Detroit—Police have introduced the "ice cream degree" and in its one trial it worked. Sixteen-year-old Joseph Lark, accused of a hold-up in which a man was shot, withstood two days of questioning. Then police gave him two helpings of ice cream. Lark disposed of them.

"I'm feeling pretty good now," he announced. "I did it."

A Very Good Idea.

Rotary Club Favors Boy Scout Movement

Kingston, N. Y.,
October 6, 1932.

Mr. C. Ray Everett,
General Chairman,
Boy Scouts of America,
Kingston, N. Y.,
Dear Mr. Everett:

The success of the Ulster-Grange Council of the Boy Scouts of America has been an object of very special interest to the Kingston Rotary Club for many years.

Because it cultivates healthful habits and wholesome hobbies during the most important period in the life of a boy, Scouting exercises a powerful influence in the physical, mental, and moral development of youth.

It is undoubtedly the most effective antidote for juvenile crime that has yet been devised.

Surely, the Boy Scout movement deserves our enthusiastic support.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) J. S. J. MORGAN,
President Kingston Rotary Club.

Scout Council to Start Campaign

The past year's history of the Kingston Scout Council, Boy Scouts of America, has been one of the best in the history of the council. Membership has increased and activities have increased. From all sides there is enthusiasm on the part of Scouts and Scouters.

The membership today is the largest in the history of the council with 1,000 Scouts and Scouters. Over 700 boys are now enrolled in the various troops and over 250 men are serving as Scoutmasters and leaders. During the past year the membership increased 24 per cent and is still increasing. It is expected by the end of the present year there will be more than 800 boys enrolled in the many troops.

One of every six boys of Scout age in the Kingston area is a Scout and during the coming year it is the desire of the Scout Council to enroll at least one out of every four. If this can be accomplished there will be over 1,000 boys taking part in the character building and citizenship training activities of the council.

There are 34 troops located in 22 communities in the two counties and the council has requests from more communities to organize troops for their boys. These additional requests will be met just as far as possible and the funds of the campaign will assist in this.

During the past year hundreds of boys of service have been given by Scouts to organizations and towns. One of the most extensive activities of service has been the aid given to the welfare work of the towns in their welfare work.

The past summer camp conducted by the council was the largest in its history. More boys than ever before attended the camp. Boys were sent from practically every community that has troops. In the past 10 years the camp attendance has increased 75 per cent and is still continuing to show marked improvement.

most. This year the council was successful in securing a new site near the old Scout camp. Here the Scouts have 144 acres of land that is adapted to all varieties of camping and other out of door activities. During the past summer hundreds of Scouts were entertained at the camp and all expressed their approval of the new site.

The budget for 1932 has been arranged by the executive board and they find that $10,000 is needed to do an effective place of work with boys and to take care of the ever increasing membership and demands made upon the council's various activities. Every economy has been made. The budget this year is 24 per cent less than last year and this has been made possible by a revision of the program and reduction in all items.

The local campaign for this section starts on Monday, October 17, and will continue during the week. It is the desire of the officials in charge to complete the entire campaign during the four following days.

ACTIVITIES THIS WEEK

The members of the Sunday Bible school have been asked to bring used children's clothing Sunday for the needy children of the city.

The first devotional service of the Senior Luther League for the season held last Sunday was marked by a large attendance and an interesting discussion. The service Sunday promises to be equally interesting for the topic is "The Attitude of Jesus Toward Race and Nations." The leader will be Miss Ruth Greenburgh.

The Downtown Circle will hold a clam chowder sale Friday of this week.

VAN DEUSEN'S CHICKENS WIN

PRIZES AT DANBURY FAIR

Frank Van Dusen of Albany avenue extension, made a fine showing at the Danbury Fair. Nine birds were entered and he carried away five first prizes, one second and one fourth. One Black Cocker Bantam pullet won first prize in a class of thirteen. Mr. Van Dusen also won several prizes at the Dutchess County Fair held at Rhinebeck a few weeks ago. Plans are now being made to enter his birds in the poultry shows in Sharon, Conn., and White Plains, N. Y.

Swallows Hold Secret

of Their Winter Home

Exactly where the swallows spend the winter is their own secret. Many students of birds (ornithologists) believe that they go to some island near South America. So far, however, no one has definitely located their winter home. They start going southward in July—which is earlier than most birds.

It is evident that birds know when it is time to migrate, and when to return to us. They also know where they are going; for certain birds will return season after season to the same vine on the veranda of a house, arriving on the same day of the month each year. This fact has been established by placing numbered bands on birds' legs before they migrate.

It is nothing less than marvelous that they are able to know when to travel, where to go, and how to get there and return. Gene Stratton Porter, a great nature student and writer, once said, "What determines the precise minute of their starting to come to us or to leave us, or how they follow their trackless path high in air across seas and continents mostly under cover of darkness, we do not know."

One fact seems obvious: that some force or influence takes possession of their actions at these times and that they cannot help doing what they do. Some call this "instinct," and others call it "subconscious mind."—Missouri Farmer.

Compass Needle Can Be

Distracted From Pole

The coast and geodetic survey says at numerous places on the earth there are disturbances of the magnetic condition which is normal to the region so that the compass needle is turned out of the direction which it could be expected to make there. In a small area near Juneau, Alaska, values of declination ranging from 175 degrees west to 170 degrees east were observed where about 31 degrees 30 minutes east would be expected, and at one spot the dip was 59 degrees 30.4 minutes, and the compass needle lost its directive property, so that the declination was indeterminate. Here the disturbing material was evidently quite near the surface and limited in extent, as the effect disappeared within a few miles of the point of maximum disturbance. At Port Snettisham, Alaska, there is an area of marked local disturbance which extends beyond the land nearly across the adjacent deep inlet. In the province of Kursk, Russia, there is a notable region of local disturbance extending for about 200 kilometers in a northwest-southeast direction.

Women Inventors

While the first American invention was patented by a man, the records further state that the process was "found out by Sybilie, his wife." This patent was granted by the British government to Thomas Manton for an invention for cleaning and curing Indian corn. For 19 years after the enactment of the patent law, in 1790, not a single one of the 10,000 patents issued was granted to a woman. The first successful application from a woman was recorded in 1806, and was for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread. Even for a quarter of a century afterward there were less than a score of patents granted to women.

Big Price for Violin

The Etude says that it is impossible to state the highest amount ever paid for a Stradivarius violin. There are rumors of sums all the way from $25,000 to over $100,000.

"Hold Washington—Capture Albany!" Davison Battlecry

Republican Nominee for Lieutenant-Governor Coins G. Q. P. Sloggin.

"Hold Washington—capture Albany!" is the fighting slogan which Trubee Davison—Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor—will carry into every section of the State in the vigorous campaign he will wage for the election of State and National G. O. P. tickets.

"I will sell Hoover and Donovan on every street corner and at every cross-road," said Mr. Davison. "Speaking for myself, as well as for my fellow ticket men, I can say that our standard bearers are men we are proud to follow. We have a fight on our hands, but we will win."

The Campaign Puzzle

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecasts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the twelfth of 16 articles showing how states voted in the 1928 presidential election and pointing out developments since.)

North Carolina's Vote for President in 1928:

Hoover 348,923
Smith 286,227

North Carolina, a member of the "solid south," usually has been counted upon by its Democratic leaders to produce a majority of between 50,000 and 100,000 votes for their candidates for state or national offices.

This tradition was overturned in 1928 when the state gave Herbert Hoover a majority of more than 62,000. The prohibition views of Alfred E. Smith and activities of anti-Smith Democrats were regarded as influencing the result. In the same year O. Max Gordon (D.) was elected governor over Herbert F. Sewell (R.) by a vote of 262,069 to 289,415.

In the senatorial election of 1926, Josiah W. Bailey (D.) defeated George M. Pritchard (R.) by a vote of 224,393 to 210,761.

In the Democratic primaries this year Robert F. Reynolds, a wet, defeated Cameron Morrison, dry, for the senatorial nomination by a majority of 107,000. Local issues, as well as prohibition, were involved in the campaign.

The prohibition issue and economic programs of the parties have been in the foreground in the current campaign.

North Carolina has 13 electoral votes, one more than in 1928.

Missouri's vote for president in 1928:

Hoover 824,666
Smith 662,562

Missouri, once considered a solidly Democratic state, has voted for Republican presidential candidates in the last three elections, and in 1904 and 1908. Since 1914 it has elected Republican governors, with Democrats making inroads in state contests in "off" years.

Opposition to Alfred E. Smith in some quarters within his party marked the 1928 campaign, in which prohibition was a major issue. The most sympathetic of Missouri's two largest cities has made this issue always a live one in the state.

Missouri has had no election for governor or senator since 1928. In the congressional elections of 1926 the state elected 12 Democratic and four Republican representatives.

The delegation elected in 1928 had included six Democrats and 10 Republicans.

In the primaries of this year, Republican votes for all gubernatorial candidates totaled 551,613.

Votes for all Democratic candidates totaled 514,772. The Democratic primaries included several unusually heated contests.

Prohibition has overshadowed other issues in early campaign discussions.

Missouri's electoral vote is reduced by reapportionment from 19 to 15.

South Dakota's Vote for President in 1928:

Hoover 157,603
Smith 102,660

South Dakota has not given its vote to a Democratic candidate for president since 1896, when it gave Bryan a majority of 183 votes. In 1912 its vote went to Theodore Roosevelt, progressive.

The presidential campaign of 1928 was fought out over the issues of prohibition and the continuance of existing economic conditions. In the same year William J. Bulow (D.) was re-elected governor for his second term. He was the second

Democratic governor in the state's history.

In the state elections of 1930, Governor Bulow defeated William H. McMaster (R.) for the senate with 144,217 votes to 99,595. In the same year the Republicans recaptured the governorship. Warren E. Green receiving a majority of 12,449 in a contest involving state issues.

The economic programs of the two parties, with special regard to farm relief proposals, have claimed general attention in the current campaign.

The expression of Senator Peter Norbeck (R.) upon the presidential candidates was awaited with the expectation that it might influence many of his followers.

Reapportionment has reduced South Dakota's electoral vote this year from five to four.

W.C.T.U. Convention Held in Plattekill

(Official Report)

The fifty-second annual convention of the Ulster County W. C. T. U. was held in Plattekill Methodist Episcopal Church on October 5. The guests of honor were Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, New York state president, and the Rev. M. C. Adams of Cornwall. Motto, "For God and Home and Every Land." Slogan for the hour, "Enforce the Law." Wednesday morning a large number of delegates and members of the W. C. T. U. were cordially welcomed by the Plattekill president and others and asked to register. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, the picture of Frances E. Willard, and the American, Christian and Temperance flags.

The morning session was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. A. Follen. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Edward Young, the evangelistic director. All sang, 23rd Psalm. Mrs. Young read 37th Psalm, offered a fervent prayer followed by sentence prayers and closed by all singing "March of Allegiance."

All sang "America" and the salute to the three flags was led by Mrs. Lizzie Dransfield. It was voted the president appoint committees on membership, credentials, courtesies and subscriptions. Greetings from the church were given by the Rev. Herbert Hahn, pastor, who spoke words of encouragement even though there was a great battle to fight. Jesus came to found the Christian Church and bring the spirit of love into the world which led up to such reforms as prohibition. He gave all a hearty welcome.

Greeting from the local union was given by the president, Mrs. Emma Carpenter, who said, "Plattekill gives you greeting. We are just friends all together and when we go all to feel it is the end of a perfect day." Plattekill union was organized in 1892 by Emily Burgess. In 1932 it entertained the Ulster County W. C. T. U. Has held three conventions and has had four presidents in that time.

Response was given by Miss Julia Haabrouck, president of Stone Ridge union, which had entertained the Institute in the spring. She thanked for the hearty welcome given to all and said the work of the W. C. T. U. was to stay the wet forces and try to elect a dry Congress.

Then followed reports of directors of departments. Americanization, by Mrs. Della Covert of Lloyd. She said that was a long word but no longer than the work there was to do. Had visited five schools, gave them some work to do. Had to get right thoughts in children's minds when they first go to school. In one school there wasn't a foreign child. Mrs. Young told of an old church a few miles from Milton where the Rev. Mr. Moncada of Newburgh had established an Italian mission.

Child Welfare by Mrs. M. Lee. There are six unions not having a child welfare department. Most of the other unions had done some good work.

Citizenship, Mrs. Kate Covert. Work had been done by several of the unions.

Evangelistic, Mrs. Edward Young. There is a saying, "If you want a thing well done, do it yourself," but not so with the county directors. They have to depend on the local directors to send in reports of work. Read an excellent letter from Dry Brook. Several reports were received. Plattekill was the banner union in some respects. Spoke of the Bible in the schools and read a poem, "I want to see the Bible where the Bible used to be." Fair work, Mrs. Jantha Cantine, absent.

Flower Mission, Mrs. George Cornell. Report read by Mrs. Swift. Walkkill, New Paltz, Ulster Park, Clintonville, Highland had good reports.

Patriotic Service, Mrs. Ella Goodgion. Plattekill, Highland and Stone Ridge had excellent reports. Mrs. Palen gave report of standard of excellence.

Following are some of the unions: Helen A. Palmer, Plattekill, 100 per cent; Highland 85 per cent; Clintonville 80 per cent; New Paltz 70 per cent; Stone Ridge 70 per cent; Mrs. Bernard, president Clintonville Union, had 12 new members and a net gain of seven. Others had good standings.

Next was the election of officers with Mrs. Kate Covert, vice president, presiding. Mrs. Edward Young offered prayer. Tellers were appointed by president. Mrs. Palen was first elected county president at Fort Ewen ten years ago. She had tried to serve faithfully all these years and asked to be relieved now. The members didn't want to give her up and she was elected president for another year. It was very impressive.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. J. A. Follen; first vice president, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Plattekill, second vice president, Mrs. Kate Covert; Clintonville, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Helen C. Taber; Milton, recording secretary, Mrs. Webster Hare; Walkkill, treasurer, Mrs. Ethel Swift; Highland.

Mrs. Hiram Reiley gave an excellent report on Sunday school work and was commended by the president. The New York state president, Mrs. Colvin, was then ushered to the platform, but needed no introduction and was heartily welcomed by the members. She spoke a few words about the important events of the state convention to be held in Newburgh October 20-25.

Memorial service was then led by Mrs. Kate Covert. She read several verses of scripture from anyone of which a minister could preach a sermon, and offered impressive prayer with everyone bowing head. Mrs. Brown, the musical director, then sang beautifully "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling," a favorite of one of the departed members of Highland. As the name of each one who had passed on in the county was called by Mrs. Covert and tribute offered by some member of their union, a white carnation was placed in the basket by Mrs. Carpenter. There were fifteen members in the county who had passed on to their heavenly home. One member of Highland, Mrs. Coutant, passed away on her 53rd anniversary and her husband died one day later, and they had a double funeral. An honorary member and Friends minister living at Tillson was 95 when he passed on. Mrs. Brown then sang another solo, "In the Garden," at the close of the service.

Noontide prayer was offered, the president made announcements, and the morning session adjourned. All passed to the dining room where a box lunch was enjoyed and coffee served by members of the local union. Mrs. Carpenter, the local president, and her helpers, had done everything for the pleasure and comfort of all.

Afternoon Session. Afternoon session was opened by a duet by the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Hahn, accompanied by Mrs. Everett and enjoyed by all.

The minutes of the morning session and the executive session were read by Mrs. Hare and approved.

Mrs. Palen then gave her annual address. She said in part:

James Russell Lowell says: "Once to every man and nation Comes the moment to decide: In the strife for Truth with Falsehood For the good or evil side."

Once more we are in the midst of a presidential campaign that starts off with liquor or booze as its overshadowing issue, as there are wet planks in both platforms. The drys believe that alcoholic drinks are the curse of the nation, but the wets infer that beer and whiskey are panaceas for all ills. President Hoover in his speech of acceptance in Washington on August 11, said that the purpose of the Republican party was to eliminate the present evils of the liquor traffic, to learn the wishes of the several states and to allow such states that desire liquor to have it.

The federal government to protect dry states. We gather from his speech and that of the Democratic candidate that prohibition is doomed, yet on the other hand, "the old saloon" must not return. We would like to know what is to replace the old saloon. I would like to impress upon the people gathered here that the president of the United States cannot alter the constitution of this country whether he be wet or dry—the only way in which an amendment can be added to or repealed is by a two-thirds vote of both houses of congress and three-fourths of the states must ratify. The states must ratify in seven years. Those people who think that intoxicating drinks will return the day after a wet president is elected have much to learn concerning the prohibition law.

Do not the wets already know that they can do far greater things for their country than to provide booze. If they have a spark of patriotism about them? We hear and know many sad stories about distress and lack of money among our people. Will it make for better times to bring liquor back? You can't buy milk if you spend your money for beer. Be strong!

We are not here to play, to dream, to drift; We have hard work to do and loads to lift; Shun not the struggle—face it! 'tis God's gift. Be strong! Say not the days are evil, who's to blame? And fold the hands and acquiesce—on shame! Stand up! Speak out and bravely in God's name Be strong! It matters not how deep entrenched the wrong, How hard the battle goes, the day how long; Faint not—fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

Mrs. Palen was given a rising vote of thanks for her excellent address.

Mrs. Helen C. Taber, corresponding secretary, gave a good report. The number of paid members in the county to date, 542. She gave the membership of each union.

Mrs. Ethel V. Swift, county treasurer, gave a good report and asked that all local dues be paid promptly. The auditors' report was given by Mrs. Young and Mrs. Maynard, and the treasurer's report was accepted. All then enjoyed a duet by the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Hahn.

The Rev. M. C. Adams of Cornwall was then introduced and gave a stirring address on "Present Crisis in Prohibition and the Way Out." He was listened to with much interest, although he said, some were not going to believe as he believed. He said the history of temperance is one worth while to note, from the first to the present day. It has been progressive. One of the rules of the first temperance society was that one who drank on Sunday should be fined one shilling. It has always been known that drink must be limited, and people sought to prohibit it. There is a difference between temperance and prohibition. Temperance is to keep the man from the liquor.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

Ready for Rain or Shine

Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild.

The gloves on the hands show a typical ruffle cuff, in black fabric stitched and piped in white, the ruffle having a jaunty scalloped edge and carrying down on to the back of the hand.

In the center is a long one-button type of glove which is having success in leather as well as in the fabric.

The novel glove at the right shows the tucked section which also is a much favored note this fall. The tucked inset at the outside of the wrist with its notched edge accented with contrast color.

The two umbrella handles feature this season's use of sterling decoration on composition handles, the upper one of the two in crook style on dark green pyralis, and the lower one the straight knob type in silver on yellow.

The child's umbrella sketched in the upper half circle has a bird's head in brown carved wood with yellow eyes, on a navy and lighter blue umbrella with red border.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

At a recent smartly attended race meet the smartest combinations were gray with brown detail, which may be listed as a fashion adopted by a small percentage, and by women of various ages from the deb to the matron.

Black with white or black with yellow was observed. There were three or four scarlet frocks worn by younger girls, and an occasional rust. White accents occurred with brown, black, red and green, the latter appearing in bright emerald.

Prohibition is to keep the liquor from the man. Drink makes a man a mere animal in the hands of some temptation over which he has no control. Told of a man who was dying with delirium, who two years before had been a respected citizen. The 18th Amendment was not put over on anybody. It took 70 years of temperance work. Temperance and prohibition have done something for the country. We must fight until the last root of intemperance is pulled out. It will not be possible unless we stand together and fight until every man and woman is convinced temperance is the best thing. He made a plea for God's help and was inspired to work for temperance, by the prayers of his mother back home. Don't give up. Your work will live on, and be thankful for the noble ones who did not fail.

Mr. Adams was given a rising vote of thanks.

Mrs. Hare then spoke on the Peace department. Mrs. Frank Carpenter told of the good work that had been done through the Scientific Temperance Instruction Department.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Van Wagenen reported good work done in the Temperance Literature and Press Departments. Milton reported 85 inches of publicity, the most of any union. Many of the unions had taken subscriptions to the Union Signal. Eight unions were quota unions. Kingston, Lloyd, Highland, New Paltz, Plattekill, Ulster Park, Milton and Stone Ridge.

Mrs. J. R. Melius gave report on Temperance Missions. $30 had been sent to World's Temperance Fund. Those unions giving five dollars and the Union Signal to a foreign missionary were called "Light Line Unions." The following presidents of unions gave a demonstration by marching in, carrying a lighted candle and the Union Signal and five dollar bill: Mrs. Emma Carpenter, Plattekill; Mrs. Hiram Reiley, New Paltz; Mrs. Walter Bernard, Clintonville; Mrs. Katherine Dero, Walkkill; Mrs. Ethel Swift, Highland; and Mrs. J. B. Steketee, Kingston.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, New York state president, was then introduced and gave an excellent address. Some important things to do are to unite the Christian women in a community in the fight for temperance, spread the gospel of temperance and prohibition in every community, work for the extinction of the liquor traffic and help people to know the danger of liquor. She gave ten goals to work for, for the coming W. C. T. U. anniversary celebration in 1933 and 34, and said we have to depend on the young people to help us win. Following are the goals: Prayer, and praying bands.

Organization: New members of W. C. T. U.; new members of Y. F. B. C.; new members of L. T. L. Departments: Medal contests; Light Line Unions. Subscriptions: The Union Signal; The Young Crusader. Finances: $1,000 gifts; annuities. Mrs. Colvin was given a rising vote of thanks. The offering was then taken and the afternoon session adjourned.

All were invited to the dining room, where the tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit and candles, and all served to a delicious supper.

Evening session opened with a song service led by Mrs. Helen Brown of Highland. All sang "W. C. T. U. Song of Praise," "White Ribbon Victrolas," and "America the Beautiful." A solo by Joseph Bessel, "Eye hath not seen or ear hath not heard the things that God hath prepared for them that love Him" was much enjoyed. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hahn. The Rev. Herbert Hahn then read the Scripture, Luke 10:35-37, and offered an earnest prayer.

A beautiful solo "Bells over Jordan" was rendered by Myron Foster and he responded with an encore. The church was filled both afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Colvin, New York state president, then gave her evening address. She spoke of a tablet that had been presented to the Lins school in honor of Miss Frances Willard. Reviewed some things in the life of Miss Willard. They traced the liquor and wherever it was, there they went. They worked for total abstinence, but used every means to get rid of the selling of liquor. They tried to keep people from the liquor, and the liquor from the people. Through prohibition liquor has been outlawed, and prohibition has decreased the consumption of liquor. She told of all the steps it would take, and the length of time to repeal the 18th amendment. God is always on the side of right and what is right will win.

Mrs. Colvin was given a rising vote of thanks.

The Class Gather Wearing Their Tartans

New York—The peek-a-boo idea keeps intruding. It has some curious interpretations as for instance the use of bands of sheer matter inserted in heavier cloth or silk. There are also real peek-a-boo not always coyote, but rows of fagoting or something transparent to lighten the heavy effect of the new rough or heavy looking materials.

One of the outstanding features of the autumn is the popularity of plaids. Plaids have most certainly been graduated from school and are out in society. There are plaid coats, the swagger variety usually, plaid dresses, tunics, or guimpes, plaid skirts, capes and suits but above all these plaid accessories including hats. What's become of the ancient prejudice against them on the score that they were hard to wear and harder still to make up? There is a call for the genuine Scotch tartans and those who have a tartan belonging to their own clan are proudly sporting it.

There is a brisk demand for plaid scarfs or wool, mostly the latter and with them one may carry a plaid purse, or wear a plaid hat. The boater being very new and chic—boater being English for sailor, in case you do not happen to be familiar with the term.

There is a persistent rumor that one's hat should be worn squarely on one's head and that the anxious query, "Is my hat on straight?" is coming to be the burning question of the day. Heretofore if one asked such a thing, one hoped that the answer would be "no." Now one is anxious for it to be "yes." So far one must admit, the straightly worn hat is more talked about than seen. All hats, straight or otherwise must show the hair. Crowns remain shallow and with the approach of winter and the high fur collars, brims are shrinking out of sight, from the back at least. Hats reveal the hair and the hair reveals the ears.

The Russian Situation From Another Angle

With the revival of the tunic and the settling of the waistline into a more comfortable area and the high cut of blouses, frequently buttoned up to the throat, it was almost inevitable that some versions of the Russian blouse should come in and that designers here and there should revert to styles reminiscent of Russian influence.

Occasionally one sees Persian lamb trimmings so adjusted as to give the Russian impression, wide girdles and short tunics are adjusted to do the same thing.

INSULL FREE, ENJOYS GLORY THAT WAS GREECE

Athens, Oct. 12 (AP).—Samuel Insull, entirely free after his brief detention by police, awoke today in fine spirits at the Petit Palais, a leading hotel of Athens. He said he planned to stay here for some time enjoying the glory that was Greece.
Meanwhile, officials at the American legation said the necessary warrant was on the way again to secure his detention and that as soon as it arrives a fight will be begun in the courts to take the erstwhile power magnate back to the United States to face an indictment for embezzlement and larceny in connection with the collapse of his utilities empire.
Despite this prospect, after an automobile ride last night, Insull said he was very much pleased with Greece.
He added that his health was good, that the climate suited him exactly, and that he intended to stay here "for the present," visiting all the places renowned in ancient Greek history.
Insull's original plan was to stay here about eight months, he said, but he indicated he intended to remain now at least until after the elections in the United States.

INSULL'S PASSPORT ORDERED TAKEN UP

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP).—The State Department has instructed the American legation in Athens to take up the passport of Samuel Insull, Sr.

Activities at The High School

The election of the officers of the Senior Class of Kingston High School was completed a few days ago. It is the custom of the school to conduct its elections one at a time, thus carrying the balloting over a period of two weeks or more.
The students chosen to lead the class this year are as follows: President, Elberton Hasbrouck, vice president, Dorothy Houghy, secretary, Evelyn Rame, treasurer, Arthur Fitzgibbon.

Also the class selected a committee to handle the business of getting the senior rings. They are as follows: Elberton Hasbrouck, Jane Elston, John Callahan, John McManus and Florence Sheeley.
The committee for the Senior Dance, which is held each year on Thanksgiving night, will be appointed in the near future.

Debating
The debating organizations of Kingston High School are active again under the direction of the Chief Coach Miss Ethel M. Hull, who was elected recently president of the Inter-School Debating League of eastern New York. She was chosen at the annual conference held at Kingston, which included all the schools of the Hudson Valley. Miss Hull succeeds Mr. Schlawer of Arlington.

Culver Vice-Principal
Theron A. Culver has been appointed vice-principal of high school by the Board of Education. Mr. Culver is fitted for the position because of his keen interest in school affairs during past years. Probably no one is better informed concerning the student body than he.
Mr. Culver has been chief advisor of the Senior Class for some time and his work has been most successful.

P.T.A. No. 6 Heard Rev. Lucas Boeve

The patriotic meeting of the P.T.A. of No. 6 opened with the salute to the flag and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Quite befitting the Columbus Day celebration a group of boys under the supervision of Miss Terwilliger gave an interesting historical sketch, "The Great White Bird." The boys portrayed quite realistically the first meeting of Columbus and his men with the Indians.

The banner for attendance was won by Miss Bailly upstairs and Miss Fitzgerald downstairs. Under the energetic leadership of Mrs. Roosa the P.T.A. is planning a clam chowder sale November 4.

After the business of the meeting was dispatched the Rev. Lucas Boeve gave an interesting and inspiring talk on character building. As a parent and teacher as well as preacher, the Rev. Mr. Boeve found himself quite at home among his listeners. The teacher, the minister and the parent, he said, all have the same object—the same aim—all of which can be summed up in character building. "The building of character should be the leading enterprise of every city and of every community. The making of good homes is important; the building up of a city's industries is important; but more important is the building of character. The city that neglects it is doomed. All other tasks are subordinate to this one. Any business that unmakes character should not be tolerated. It is the pre-eminent business of the home, the school and the church to mold the raw material of youth into manhood and womanhood. The shiftness, the uselessness and the aimless must be made of value to society. lofty ideals must be given to youth so they may grow strong in grace and beauty. Grace and beauty are alike. The pictures of great men hung in classrooms and the stories of their lives inspire youth with a lofty idealism.
It is the task of the parent, the teacher, and the minister to so mold the character of the young that they can say with the Prophet Isaiah 'I will make a man more precious than gold, than the finest gold.' The search for gold is long and hard but much more difficult is the search for character. Character is scarcer than cash. Men are plentiful, found everywhere, such as they are. But men in the campaign of life register true, do not shrink duty, men who cannot be bribed, men who in places of public trust will not enrich themselves at public expense are God's masterpieces. Men without character are a liability rather than an asset in any city. The three important elements that influence the building of character are (1) the home (2) the school and (3) the church. All three can be summed up in religious education. Without religion you cannot build character that will stand four square against every wind that blows," he said.

The meeting was brought to a close with the serving of delicious refreshments.

"SWEAT BOX" CASE STILL CONTINUES IN COURT

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 12 (AP).—The trial of Captain George W. Courson and Guard Solomon Higgins, both in the sweat box death of Arthur Maillefert of New Jersey today revolved about testimony of attempts to extend kindness and friendship to the young convict as the defense attacked prosecution stories of brutality.

One witness, T. C. Kroger, said Courson was kind to Maillefert and told the prisoner he would release him from the punitive cell where he died "right now" if he would promise to "do right." Kroger, who said he was released from prison Friday, with six months off for good behavior, said Maillefert refused to acquiesce.

The Society Column

By M. IRVING KING

(By the Kingston Newspaper Syndicate)

LAWRENCE CARPENTER had a very pretty and very young lady in his office who did his stenography and typewriting for him. Her name was Florence Capwell—and her other name was efficiency. He liked her and not at all. Her name was Rose, and she was of about the same age as Florence, that is, about twenty-five. Rose came often to the office and always stopped to chat with Florence. In fact, they had become exceedingly good friends, although Rose was decidedly in the social swim and Florence was decidedly not.
She had got into the habit of reading the society column in the newspapers. And she noticed that whenever in a list of "Among those present were" Rose's name appeared the name of Lucius Dartmore began to appear, too—and with increasing frequency. This added to her discontent. For she knew Lucius Dartmore and he had every outward quality calculated to attract the admiration of an unmarried young lady of twenty-five, looks, wealth and a most captivating manner. He was Mr. Carpenter's wife's nephew. Whenever he visited his uncle's office, which was frequently, he was always very polite to Florence. She had even taken "dictation" from him upon occasions and enjoyed the work.

"Of course, Rose will marry Lucius," she thought, "and they will live happy ever after with yachts and country houses, and expensive cars with liveried chauffeurs, and—oh, everything; and I shall make shorthand notes and pound this infernal old typewriter until I get too old to work any more."

Florence made three mistakes in taking dictation that day and was so cross that Raymond Hartley, who was deeply in love with her, was heartbroken. Raymond was one of Mr. Carpenter's "bright young men," a sort of confidential clerk.

Florence liked Raymond—he was, to her, the most companionable person in the office. She even allowed him to take her to dinner occasionally. But what a commonplace fellow he was compared to the gorgeous and all-conquering Dartmore! "No more to be compared to Lucius than I am to Rose," thought Florence a little bit. But the day after she had been so cross with him she was sorry, and made amends by being unusually agreeable; whereas Raymond's pessimism vanished.

Then things began to happen rapidly. Three days after "Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carpenter announced the engagement of their daughter, Rose, to Mr. Lucius Dartmore." Rose eloped with a Lieutenant of marines—of good family, it is true, but no money—and was married. The matter was smoothed over as well as it could be—such things always are among sensible people of the world—the transient bride was forgiven by her parents, in form at least, and the bridegroom escaped court-martial.

It was a sensation, of course, while it lasted, but a new style of hobnobbing the hair, or some other important event, happened about that time, and it was soon forgotten. The manner in which Dartmore accepted the situation was delightful to see. His manner took on just the proper tinge of resignation, just the becoming hint of heartbreak, just the admirable air of rising superior to the blows of fate. In his heart Lucius felt rather relieved. The match between Rose and himself had been made by his aunt and he had accepted the proposition. With all his good qualities it must be admitted that Lucius was, after all, of a rather shallow nature.

But having got the idea of marriage into his head Lucius did not readily get it out again. "No more heartbreak for me," he thought. "I've enough money of my own. And no society butterflies either. Now there's that little Puritan in Uncle Lawrence's office. She's just my idea of what a girl ought to be to make a good wife. No desire for society, no longings for all the flubdub which makes up the life of the wealthy." Little did he guess how with longings and envy Florence had read the society column when he and Rose were covering about the social arena. "Miss Florence Capwell," mused he. "I think we will change your name to Florence Dartmore."

It is needless to go into the details of how Lucius sought out Florence and paid court to her. He did it all very properly, deftly and dexterously; as became an adept in good practice. At first Florence was flattered—and flattered. All the glittering visions which had arisen from the mists of the society column became realities within her reach. But as realities she found she did not fancy them—they did not glitter with a real near at hand.

The day after Lucius had proposed—and been rejected—Florence went to the office as usual; but in an unusually thoughtful mood. "Raymond," she said about four o'clock that afternoon, "you may take me out to dinner at Archambault's tonight, if you want to." He did want to. But it was six months before they were married. Raymond, on Mr. Carpenter's death, took over the business. In the society column you sometimes see the name of Miss Florence Hartley. That's the daughter of our Florence.

Lung Clinics Will Be Held This Month

The health officers and physicians are actively assisting in the promotion of the early diagnosis of tuberculosis. As a part of this health measure, and at the request of the local health officers, Dr. Frank Laidlaw, district state health officer, has made arrangements with the State Department of Health to hold five consultation clinics for diseases of the lungs at the following places:

Saugerties—Firemen's Hall, October 17 and 18.
Kingston—Knights of Columbus Hall, October 19 and 20.
Highland—Ganz Memorial Building, October 21.

The clinic hours will be from 1 to 4 p. m., local time.
Dr. Chandler and Lincoln, of the state department of health, will examine the patients and X-ray pictures will be taken. Anyone desiring an examination will be admitted upon presentation of a card signed by the family physician, or if there is no family physician, by the health officer.

In an effort to assist the family physicians these clinics have been held throughout the state at intervals for the past ten years and large numbers of people have been referred by their doctors for consultation and X-ray. Aside from known cases of tuberculosis, patients who have been referred for examination have been of two types: Persons presenting such symptoms as bronchitis, asthma, coughs, persistent colds, loss of weight, undue fatigue and symptoms of like character; and persons, especially children, who have been in contact with cases of tuberculosis.

There is no doubt that the early diagnosis and prompt treatment of cases, and the close supervision and periodic re-examination of exposed children, will do much to further decrease the death rate from tuberculosis.

Woodlawn Better Than Ever, Writes Manager

Practice for the Yellow Jackets at the North Manor avenue field tonight at 7:30 o'clock has been called by Manager Lou Kan'trowitz and Coach Big Bill O'Reilly, who request that the men bring their pads for scrimmage drill.

Coach O'Reilly has a number of new plays in preparation for the Woodlawn team, sponsored by Irwin Post, American Legion, of Yonkers, which the "Boys" are to play at the Kingston Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock.

It has been announced that Harry Schofield, veteran end for the past five years, has again signed with the Yellow Jackets and will attend tonight's practice.

The management of the Woodlawn team, communicating with Lou Kan'trowitz recently, wrote: "We are better than ever—have new uniforms and helmets and 'plenty of class'."

The Roster

Players who will come to Kingston, and their numbers, are as follows:

Ends—H. Smith 7, Lauritsen 22, L. Flood 6, Reid 18, and Aldersio 22.

Tackles—C. Smith 11, J. Banthal 15, Gold 16, and Briganti 20.

Guards—Odell 2, Mulligan 19, E. Reichert 13, and T. Walsh 21.

Centers—G. Reichert 1, and De Castro 9.

Quarterbacks—M. Flood 3, and Le Maire 24.

Halfbacks—Bonelli 4, Selvidge 14, Sharkey 12, Camp 10, and Wilkins 17.

Fullbacks—Markley 5, and Mack 8.

New Players

The Woodlawn have several new men in their lineup. Banthal, 205 pounds, and Briganti, 190, are former members of Fordham. Reid, 190, formerly played with the Gael of New Jersey, a professional eleven, and had a tryout with the New York Giants. Ziggy Mack and Chick Vonnelli are two heavy semi-pro baseball players with contracts for Giant farms next year. They are considered just as able on the gridiron as on the baseball diamond.

The line averages 195 pounds from end to end and the backfield about 170 pounds.

Coach Bill O'Reilly has not announced his Yellow Jacket lineup yet, but after tonight's practice is expected to have a fair idea of just who will start Sunday.

The "Wasp" are strong for a victory over Woodlawn in order to make their wins three in a row before taking on the widely heralded Sing Sing prison team Sunday afternoon, October 23. So far the Jackets have defeated the West Point Artillery and the Albany Lucky Strikers.

Sing Sing's Losses

Sing Sing has won two straight games and this Sunday will tackle the Port Jervis Police. The eleven of Warden Laves will be without the services of Cy Stokes, backfield man, who was injured last week. He is to have a place of honor on the sidelines for the contest.

Besides being without Stokes for this Sunday's game and the one with the Yellow Jackets in all probability, Sing Sing will also lose another valuable backfield man in "Jumbo" Morano if he does not request that a parole, which is scheduled to start on October 20, be deferred until after the grid season.

Among those going to Sing Sing in the three busses chartered by Lou Kan'trowitz is Mayor Eugene B. Carey. It is expected that 200 fans will make the trip.

Eastern Elevens Aim At Clean Sweep In This Week's Schedule

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Eastern elevens, standing by to repel invaders, are aiming at a clean sweep of six intercollegiate football battles this week but their prospects are none too bright.

Starting with Boston College's duel with the "Praying Colonels" of Centre College at Boston today, the intercollegiate slate carries through the Oglethorpe-Duquesne class at Pittsburgh Friday night and ends with Saturday's games between Columbia and Virginia, Southern Methodist and Syracuse, Detroit and Holy Cross, and Navy and Ohio University.

Of these the East is counting almost certainly on victories for Columbia, Boston College and in all probability Syracuse but the other games seem distinctly doubtful.

Syracuse, although beaten by Ohio Wesleyan last week, has plenty of strength, enough at any rate to start as heavy favorite over Southern Methodist's Mustangs. The Texas apparently have struck an off year for they already have been tied by North Texas Teachers and beaten by both Texas Tech and Rice. So far they have failed to score a single point and their once deadly passing attack has been conspicuous for its absence.

Although Detroit has been disappointing in its first two games of the season, the Titans probably will give Holy Cross plenty of trouble.

Duquesne pushed over Westminster, West Virginia and Grove City in succession but ran into a 33-0 walloping from Pitt's Panthers last week so the "Dukes" battle with Oglethorpe looks like a probable toss-up.

Navy expects, and probably will get, all the opposition she wants from Ohio University, a power in the Buckeye Conference.

Knights, Butchers Clash on Saturday

Despite rumors to the contrary, it was officially announced today that the third and deciding game of the City League series between the Knights of Columbus and Forst Butchers would go on at the Athletic Field Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Each team won a game, the Calveys taking the first, 8-1, and the Butchers the second, 3-1.

Paul Joyce likely will pitch for the Knights, opposing either Jimmy "Babe" Voelker or Dewey Van Buren.

Pitt Looks Forward to Army

Pittsburgh, Oct. 12.—(Special).—The best Pitt team to invade the Eastern Seaboard since 1916 will begin its trek from the Allegheny foothills Thursday evening, with the West Point, New York, and a game with Major Ralph Sasse's Soldiers as the main objectives.

Jack Sutherland has his Golden Panthers primed for this game, or rather, will have by Saturday, as no Pitt team has been primed for years. Up to date he has not been forced to give his team any but rudimentary plays, and has relied upon the perfection of the execution of these same plays for success. But against the Soldiers, Quarterback Bob Hogan expects to, and will, call for the famous double wing formation, and numerous full and half spinners, and reverses.

Three Victories to Date.

The Pitt lineup, which has won three games for the Panthers so far, will not be used this week, but instead, Captain Paul Reider and Center Joe Tormey will be back in the first eleven, replacing Mike Sebastian and George Shottwell.

None of the famous 1921 rush line will be back, but Sutherland has a set of players in the front line trenches, that are, if anything, faster on their feet than the other group. Sophomores Hoel and Hartwig, tackle and guard, respectively, have fitted into the machine so easily, that this year's Pitt team is clicking in October like former machine did in November.

Defensively the Pitt team has not been fully tested, and the Army can be counted upon to do a lot more raining than it did last season. Against aerial attacks, the Panthers have been only fair, but with the chance to take the lead for the Eastern title by winning Saturday's game, and with Paul Reider back in the secondary defense, this department is expected to show a decided improvement.

Dress Parade Will Add Glamour to Pitt Contest With Army

West Point, New York, Oct. 12.—Sports followers will enjoy a combination of military ceremonies and high class football here Saturday, October 15, at the Army-Pitt game in beautiful Michie Stadium. Starting at 1:30 p. m. a full dress review and inspection of the entire Corps of Cadets will be held on the parade ground. With the completion of that ceremony, the Corps will march to the stadium and headed by the band, march onto the gridiron at 1:50 p. m. A few snappy movements, a cheer for the "Golden Panthers," another for Army and the game will be on.

Pitt Is Champion

Champions of the East last year and with the same powerful backfield which carried them to win that high honor, Pittsburgh has what many football experts describe as the strongest scoring machine of the country. Headed by Captain Reider, right halfback, with Sebastian, Hoel and Cutri as running mates, the same quartet which ran over Army last year to the tune of a 26 to 0 victory, will be in action.

This game will be the first major test of both teams. With Sasse in his last year as head coach, it is certain that the Army squad will do everything possible to even the record. Just how the green Army line and the backfield lacking a Stecker will make out against Pitt, is problematical. It is certain though that each cadet will play his best. Reports from the trainer and team doctor state that with the exception of Ed Herb, quarterback, every man is in excellent condition.

Pitt Running Attack

Sasse's running attack was so successful against Carleton that the Army mentor has decided to go back to the football which won high honors for Army teams in the past. This year's schedule is another obstacle to Sasse with Pitt, Harvard, William and Mary, Yale and North Dakota coming on successive Saturdays.

This factor has prevented Army from pointing for any particular game and necessitated the cadets "taking 'em as they come."

"Free parking facilities are available on the Artillery plain at West Point," Major Fleming, Graduate Manager of Athletics, said. Tickets may also be obtained at the entrance to the stadium, although the best seats will be distributed to those applying before the game.

Only 3 Major Teams Without Managers

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The signing of Joseph Vincent McCarthy to a three-year contract as manager of the New York Yankees leaves only three major league managerial posts still to be filled.

At least one of these is virtually certain to be stricken off the list with the probable reappointment soon of George Gibson as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who amazed the experts by finishing second in the National League race this year.

There is more than a little doubt, however, with regard to the managerial jobs open with the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

The release of Dan Howley left the Cincinnati post wide open. There has been no definite indication as to his successor although the name of Donie Bush has been mentioned frequently in connection with the place. Bush, former manager of the Pirates and Chicago White Sox, led the Minneapolis Millers to an American Association pennant this season.

The situation at Boston is a little different. Marty McManus, veteran second sacker, handled the team during the 1932 campaign after the resignation of John (Shano) Collins, but whether Marty will be given a contract for the full 1933 season still is open to question.

Most Valuable Man

Moore (Left) Grove, star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, who was voted the American League's most valuable player for 1931, is shown here holding the trophy that was presented to him. The decision was made by baseball writers.

Unique Structure

Unique among all houses in Colonial America is the birthplace of Robert E. Lee, Stratford Hall, Virginia, because it is entirely Tudor in its architecture.

Sammy Is Saved

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(By The Associated Press)

PERHAPS if the waters of the river had not seemed so wet and undoubtedly cold and the prospects of immediate rescue so remote Sammy might have considered jumping in—so gloomy was his mental state.

"No," decided Sammy. "I don't fancy drowning about in there and probably ruining the works of my watch." And with consideration for his watch came the memory of the faint but undoubtedly fair one who had given it to him.

Her smiling with another and much richer man on the evening of Saturday last was a part of the reason for Sammy's gloom. The other reason was that he had lost his very promising position because his boss wanted it for a relative.

And if Sammy had not been so depressed and gazing into the very depths of the earth, he would not have seen the small, daintily bound pamphlet that some one must have dropped while strolling along the river side.

Sammy picked it up absently and then because a small trifle would have interested his weakened mental outlook, he turned the pages as he walked along.

Then he read the words on one page that were destined to lead him to worlds where there was never a longing to jump into cold rivers.

"The mental attitude we take toward anything determines to a greater or less extent its effects upon us," was what Sammy read and somehow it sank deep into his brain. The little book was one of those many helpful ones by Trine but Sammy read no more for the moment as he was straightway in an argument with himself and knew that the depressed Sammy was beaten—knocked out at the first round.

"I'd like to see any girl or any blooming position either make me jump into that cold water. It's just a mental weakness to let things like that trouble a healthy mind. I was just a poor simpering fish, a total eclipse of a man for giving that girl, who was after money, a passing thought—she wife should be if a fellow lost his coin. And as for the position, there are plenty more for an able man and I'm that all right."

It was in that state of renewed good comradeship with the world that he looked up and saw her approaching.

She was dangling her bag in one hand and was obviously searching for something as her eyes swept the ground every inch of the way—that is until she reached Sammy's side and it was then that Sammy knew his finish had arrived as far as other girls were concerned.

Nothing happening that could possibly form an excuse for speaking, Sammy was forced to let the girl pass him.

Then, for the second time within a quarter of an hour, Sammy called himself a poor fish, a book and every other name that suggested a softened condition of the brain.

It was of course her book that he had picked up. She was even then returning to retrace her steps in a second attempt to find it.

So when she drew near again Sammy held the small book well up in front of his eyes, seemingly deeply engrossed in its contents, but wondering, with swiftly beating heart, what measure the girl would take to recover her treasure.

"Oh," she exclaimed suddenly and quite frankly when she saw her book in a stranger's hands, "that is my book you have. I lost it not fifteen minutes ago and have searched everywhere for it."

Sammy looked at her and did a lot of quick thinking. "If I give it back to her now," ran in his thoughts, "that will be the end of the story and perhaps the end of my career—it will be thoughts of that 'wet river' again." But he said to her, "Is there any name in the book by which you can identify it?"

"Of course, my name is in it. Just look and see. Mary Elwood, 38 Green Lane."

"Then I think it would be very much nicer, indeed, if I were to call around at 38 Green Lane, my about four this afternoon and return your property. I have much to say to one who reads such helpful stuff as this. In fact—" continued Sammy, feeling that his hesitations were not exactly adverse to his idea, "I would like to tell her that one passage in this book has probably saved my life!"

"No!" cried the fair one with pity in her lovely eyes.

"Yes," said Sammy, "but now I feel as if I could conquer the world. That is," he added a bit coarsely, "if I might be allowed to return this book to the afternoon. I have to jog into town now to get a crackjack good position and I will need its helpful suggestions to show me the way."

"Oh," cried Mary delighted. "It is all too wonderful and I hope you will accomplish your idea. Yes," she added softly with the twin of that other bluish, "I would love to have my book returned this afternoon."

"Then there's no doubt about my means being realized," said Sammy, and while their material bodies moved in different directions their souls certainly strove along the river bank together.

READY FOR GUESTS

THERE are so many dishes which may be prepared the day before, saving the time and nerves of the hostess that one should gather as many of such recipes together for time of need. Here are some suggestions:

Chicken Salad in Cracker Boxes.
Soak one teaspoonful of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water and dissolve in two tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Take 24 small square crackers and put four of them together in a box shape, open top and bottom. Set on lettuce lined plates and fill with chicken salad. Mix two cupfuls of finely cut chicken with an equal amount of fine celery, a few nuts and any salad dressing desired to moisten, using salt and cayenne to season. The gelatin is used to fasten the crackers together in the shape of boxes. The crackers are to be eaten with the salad.

Whole Wheat Bread Sandwiches.
Cut quarter-inch slices of whole wheat bread and spread with butter. Mix salted peanuts, finely chopped, with cottage cheese and spread as filling.

Fruit Dessert.
To one-half pound of marshmallows cut fine add a can of shredded pineapple, with enough of the juice to moisten well; add to one pint of lemon gelatin and mold in small cups. Serve with whipped cream and chocolate wafers.

Jellied Tongue.
Take a tongue from the glass jar and cut into thin slices. Prepare a jelly by soaking one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water and adding one cupful of boiling water in which has been dissolved a bouillon cube, salt and pepper to taste. Strain. Put the tongue into a shallow mold and when the jelly begins to thicken pour over the tongue. When ready to serve turn out on a platter and garnish with slices of sweet pickled cucumbers.

Fruit Course.
Prepare cantaloupe, removing the seeds and slicing in suitable portions for serving. Serve with quartered limes, sugar and powdered ginger.

Patsy in the Kitchen

By LITTY SHERPLESS

MRS. WALTER COLLINGSWORTH opened the front door with her own little plump hands, and there stood Bruce. But what a time for anyone to come unexpectedly, even for one very good looking nephew whom she had urged to come any time he chose. "I'm terribly glad you came and I want you to stay," she told him. "But I'm giving a reception this afternoon and everything has gone wrong. You'll just have to let me go on dressing while I explain."

And there was plenty to explain as Bruce sat on a chair in his aunt's dressing room. The maid had left the day before, in a huff. Imagine anyone leaving a good place in hard times like these! And the woman she had managed to get turned out not to have any plans about party refreshments. But finally they had got the sandwiches ready and the ice cream and cakes and things were coming from the store. She had just telephoned to an agency for a skilled waitress to take charge in the pantry. There would be five or six young girls to serve as fluters. Then the door bell rang and Mrs. Collingsworth hastened downstairs—and back again baffled.

It was the girl from the agency, Mrs. Collingsworth had just told her to go out in the kitchen and get an idea of how things stood. She powdered her nose and dabbed herself with violet perfume. "I'm ready now—but tell me, Bruce, what in the world brought you out?"

"For one thing, I wanted to see you, Aunt Nellie," he said, "but that was of secondary consideration. Mostly I wanted to get away from town. Best girl let me down at the last minute and I thought you'd cheer me up. But if I'd known about the party I don't think even a broken heart and my affection for you would have induced me to come. By the way, where can I conveniently hide while the party is in session?"

Mrs. Collingsworth suggested that he stay in the kitchen. "There are so many things a man can do in an emergency."

Bruce considered escape and decided it was impossible, and as his aunt went downstairs to greet the first of the fluters he beat a hasty retreat to the kitchen. And there sitting at the kitchen table slicing a lemon he saw Patsy.

"Well, how the dickens!" Bruce said. Patsy dropped the knife and turned around. "Oh, Bruce," she cried. "What a time I had to find you, and then before I could explain, she marched me out here and told me to get busy. What does she think I am?"

"Thinks you're an expert waitress from the agency, I suppose," Bruce was explaining, and then Patsy put a warning finger to her lip as Mrs. Collingsworth bustled in.

"You're sure you know what to do?" she asked. "My nephew here will go errands for you if you need them."

The telephone had rung in the pantry and Bruce answered. He explained to his aunt that the call was from the agency. He said they wanted to know whether another helper was needed and he had told them no. "I had a terrible time finding you," Patsy was beginning again, and then Mrs. Collingsworth reappeared with a slender young fluter to introduce to Bruce.

"I'm crazy about fluters," he told his aunt on the side, "but they rattle me. If you want me to keep an eye on things you've got to get them to stay out of the kitchen."

Then there was no time for Patsy to explain, and after the last guest had departed and Mrs. Collingsworth had regained some sort of composure. Then—a quick get-away in Bruce's roadster, past the residential streets to more open country. Bruce drew up at the roadside and slouched down behind the wheel and looked at Patsy in bewilderment.

"Why did you follow me out when you were so sure at ten this morning that you didn't want to see me?"

"Because I changed my mind," the lovely Patsy explained. "Something happened Friday that made me not want to see you, and then when I thought it over I wanted to see you more than ever."

"Why didn't you let me explain to my aunt—why did you go through with it? I could have had the real waitress come."

"Because," said Patsy, "because, Bruce, I was glad to earn the money. Your aunt gave me five dollars. You see, I've lost my job. That's what I wanted to tell you. I thought maybe if you knew you'd ask me to marry you again."

"You don't mean it, Patsy! You're not serious!"

"Tex, I am," Patsy insisted. "I've always intended to marry you some time if you still wanted me. I mean it still, Bruce, but you don't have to marry me now. I mean that I have a job."

"But you just said that you had lost it!"

"I did lose my job at the office, but when your aunt paid me she asked me if I'd consider taking a regular place. I'd have my board and keep and more left over than I had in the office. I'm thinking of taking it unless—"

"Like fish you are, Patsy. Let's drive out as far as the ten-mile run and then come back and tell Aunt Nellie."

MURLEY MEN'S CLUB ENJOYS LADIES' NIGHT AND BANQUET.

Murley, Oct. 12.—On Tuesday evening, October 11, the Men's Club held its October meeting in the form of a Ladies' Night, with a banquet in the church basement. The room was decorated with autumn leaves. Places were set for 61. A menu consisting of Virginia baked ham, mashed and sweet potatoes, peas, salad, rolls, coffee and apple pie a la mode, was served. Edward Harford, the steward of the evening, is deserving of much praise and credit, which is extended to him, and also Mrs. Harford, who was his right hand aid.

Ernest Myer, president of the club, had charge of the meeting. After the banquet John Rowland favored the audience with a solo, "Sleep, Baby Sleep." Mr. Rowland was endorsed by such applause that he had to sing a third verse. Frank Snyder introduced the guest speaker, who was Rosa K. Osterhout, of Stone Ridge. Mr. Osterhout spoke of the organization of the different parties and their standards. He stressed the importance of voters doing their duty at the polls on election day irrespective of their political affiliation. Voters should study the platform and ideas of both major parties and then decide for themselves and join the party which they think best. He closed by reciting the poem, "The House by the Side of the Road." Mr. Osterhout received a round of applause for his fine speech. The Rev. Mr. Chilton then rendered a solo. Mr. Sarder rose to his feet and asked if Mr. Osterhout would be kind enough to tell his famous "Fish Story." He also recited "The Cremation of Sam McGee." These both brought forth much laughter and applause. Howard Anderson and two friends of Accord entertained with piano, violin and singing selections, which were greatly enjoyed by all. The evening was enjoyably spent by all who attended and closed with singing. "Best be the tie that binds."

Salvation Army Volunteer Day

Thursday will be Volunteer Day for the Salvation Army. The financial campaign which has been in progress for the past week is not proving as successful as in former years and the Army is trusting that every citizen of Kingston will call at the Salvation Army drive headquarters in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday and make a volunteer contribution to the home relief work of the Army. There is an ever increasing need being thrust on the Salvation Army by the large number of idle men calling at the Army Hall asking for assistance. It is hoped that every one who is in a position to contribute will do so Thursday.
